

Thomas Wold

PSAM12 Speaker Bio

Master of Arts in Communication PhD Candidate in Psychology

Short Statement: First author of the paper “End User Involvement in the Development of Procedures and Safety Management Systems”.

Karin Laumann is the second author of this paper and Wold’s Ph. D. Supervisor.

BIOGRAPHY

Thomas Wold is a PhD Candidate at the Department of Psychology at The Norwegian University of Science and technology. His supervisor is Associate Professor Karin Laumann.

He has a background from communication studies, and has previously researched various topics within young people use of new media, crime reporting in the news press and how police investigators relate to journalists, pro-anorexia online and censorship in democracies.

His current research is on the use of Safety Management System in the offshore gas and petroleum producing industry. A central perspective in this research is that management systems should be taken as a part of the internal communication in an organization, not just as a tool.

